Dear Mr. Dulles,

I do not remember that you have ever met me, so first I think I should introduce myself. I am [redacted]

STAT [redacted].

I am being considered at the present time as a likely candidate for employment with a Government Agency. Consideration of a Government job has introduced a few minor complexities on my part, and I do not wish to dive head first into my first job after graduation from Princeton without careful consideration.

Mother has referred me to you who as a friend and classmate of my father, and who as a man currently employed with the Government might be able to offer me some advice pertinent to my future.

I was wondering if I could see you for a short while during the latter part of this week on Thursday or Friday or over the weekend. I plan on going home to Ridgewood, N.J. Thursday afternoon and as this letter will probably reach you too late for you to reply by mail. I will call you Thursday evening to see if such a visit would be convenient for you.

I hope you will be able to assist me on this matter.

Sincerely yours
